EASTERN DATES TO AUGUST 24

Bazaine still at Metz

NEW YORK, Aug 24.—It is reported that Bazaine is still at Metz. (Metz is sound.) McMahon is still at Chalons and has … to re… of Bazaine. The French … assert that the Prussians … strong … Metz. The situation is not materially changed … Saturday except that the Crown Prince has halted at St Dizier for the purpose of reinforcing the Prussian center and right.

Paris telegrams state that the Prussians have cut communications between Thionville Montmedy and Metz

McMahon and Bazaine … communication.

No mediation is likely to succeed unless Napoleon takes the initiative.

Russian Mediation Denied

ST PETERSBURG, Aug 24.—The official journal denies that the Government is committed to prevent the dismemberment of France

"Draw Game."

NEW YORK, Aug 24.—A special to the Courrier des Etats Unis dated Paris Aug 23 says that Bazaine telegraphs that he tried to get away from Metz and could not. The Prussians tried to close his communications but failed. He calls it a draw game

Rumor of the Crown Prince's Movements

LONDON, Aug 24.—Private advices from Paris of the 22d say that a Chalons correspondent says that the Crown Prince is near St Dizier going towards Paris with 150 000 men. It is uncertain whether they will be able to avoid fighting before going further.

A French Account of the Situation

LONDON—Noon—August 24.—The following dispatch from Paris contains the very latest from the seat of war: Metz is entirely isolated. The Prussians are strong on the west in that vicinity. Gen Failley, who was chief in command of Chalons is still there but is suspended. McMahon is strongly posted on the plains before Chalons with heavy detachments at St Menehould Verdun and Rheims. He has 175 000 men under his command, well supplied

Dispatch from Brussels

BRUSSELS, August 24.—By cable to the S… Prussians are everywhere and marching at every place. Bazaine is not at Verdun. He is shut up in a Prussian net between Gravelotte the river Orne and the road from Metz to Etain. McMahon left Chalons burning his camp for Rheims. There he left the Emperor and part of his troops and went in a north east direction. … certain it is a movement of reconnaissance

General Le Brun assumes command of the 15th corps, vice Trochu

It is suspected that the strength of Germany has been overestimated. We hear of 80 000 Prussians in the Crown Prince's army when the whole active force is less than 50 000 strong

English Sympathy for France

LONDON, August 24.—There is a new current of feeling in England. The … that France tends to a republic and that Bismarck wishes to annex Alsace and Lorraine to Germany makes large classes of Englishmen favor France. The absence of the Queen too attributed to her Prussian sympathies is arousing feeling at London

N Y World's Dispatches

LONDON, August 24.—The New York World's special says: We have a story of a conflict nine miles from Metz on Monday with advantage for the French but cannot vouch for it

The military opinion here is that McMahon and the Crown Prince are moving on parallel lines and manoeuvering for position and that Bazaine is in communication with McMahon and manoeuvering to combine with him in any attack on the Crown Prince

A dispatch from Rome announces a general movement of Italian troops to the Pontifical frontier under Gen Cazenza. There is a belief that Victor Emmanuel is unable to control feeling in Italy for possession of Rome

The Strong Men of France

[From the Sacramento Union]

Speculation in high political circles regards the late change in the French Cabinet as a scheme of the Emperor to strengthen his … position. This is a reasonable conjecture. The Cabinet is now infinitely more popular and powerful than … ter's and … more … to the dynasty. In Count Palikao as War Minister the Emperor has a warm personal friend, fine soldier and a shrewd politician. He has seen over forty years of public service as a soldier and statesman, for which Napoleon made him a Count, Commander of the Legion of Honor and a Senator. Palikao has fought twenty eight campaigns and won as many victories. His age is against him. He is seventy-four. Magne the Finance Minister is one of the ablest men in the world upon matters relating to finance. He has held his position as such since 1854 and is the true and trusty friend of the empire and the dynasty. D'Hilliers who commands all the good troops in Paris is an old soldier of the first empire. He won his lieutenantcy in the Moscow campaign and was made a Captain for gallantry at the battle of Leipzig in 1813. The favorite of the Emperor with a natural aversion for the revolution … of all sorts … his … loyalty. His past services will secure attachment of the army. His age is also against him. He is seventy five. Bazaine is for the present the man on whom the empire and the dynasty must rely. With all the reputation accorded to Marshal Ney for personal courage this man has achieved military successes which place him at the head of the Marshals of France. He rose from the ranks like all the eminent commanders of the first empire and never met a reverse till the collapse in Mexico. But even in that country his successes repaired the faults of his predecessor and his administration was throughout marked by distinguished ability and energy. His recall by the Emperor was due to the sound advice he gave the Emperor and Maximilian, that the empire was impossible and its rejection by Maximilian cost that prince his life. Bazaine has been promoted by Louis Napoleon from a Colonelcy through all the higher grades of the service up to Marshal and now actual Commander in Chief of all the forces in Lorraine and Alsace. His age is but sixty one and he is in the full vigor of physical and intellectual health. He has the will to dare anything and the courage and tact to execute to the full extent of his means. Changarnier might be ranked among the strong men of France but his age and his … antecedents are both against him. His … seventy seven. The revolution of 1848 put him in the position which Baraguay d'Hilliers … He had command in Paris of 100 000 soldiers of the National Guard. He used his place to support Cavaignac's … against the populace. He commanded with vigor and sternness and was regarded as the … of General Monk after the death of Cromwell. At all events he was then a declared enemy of the Republicans and ready to … them in the interest of a monarchy. Yet with this deserved reputation he opposed the … of Napoleon in 1851. He was utterly … agents of the usurper captured him before … the morning of December 2d and banished shortly after … since then up to the late … of McMahon Changarnier remained the enemy of the Emperor and there was a mutual … and distrust between them. His present position … on the general staff at headquarters gives him no power. It is impossible that the Emperor can trust him with an army, since he is … and … … … that the Republicans … … Should the … … garnier might reach a command … his age … … … man. Bazaine … … are the strong men of France … are all devoted to the Empire and the dynasty

In 1808 in France M de Grandpre and M … had quarreled. They … to fight a duel in balloons. When … of the earth … signal for firing was given. M … fired but missed. M de Grandpre … sent a ball through his … balloon … collapsed the car … and … and his second were dashed to pieces

Mr Seward's Visit to the East

[From the Albany (N Y) J…]

The zeal and enthusiasm with which Mr Seward at an age when most men court the … of … home … is … the last scene … of life … statesman … the earth strikingly illustrate this … city of his nature. He has lived a long and eventful career. He has … himself through a protracted … to the … existing … of his country. He has passed through the most trying and perilous scenes. His life has hung trembling in … the assassin's knife. His frame has been … by the severe and exacting toil of the most responsible post during the most critical time. Other men … would gladly have turned from such … to the tranquil repose which belongs to declining years. But Mr Seward's spirit knows no yielding. His words are cheerful and hopeful as ever. His relief is found not in the placid rest of ease and quiet, but the active exercise of his public zeal. Truly his step is buoyant.

The country will watch with interest this journey of one of its foremost statesmen. Whatever the political controversies of the past there is now but one feeling towards the veteran Secretary and that feeling is one of kindly and sympathetic regard. If men have differed concerning any part of his career all will upon a review of his life admit the greatness of his services. The buoyant and elastic vigor of his old age must at least challenge the admiration of the world, and as he starts for the remote land of the Chinese and the island domain of the Tycoon beyond the Pacific he will carry the well wishes of all his countrymen. His visit will not be without its fruits. He is a close observer and he will have rare opportunity for an examination of the customs character and policy of those interesting people. They have a special interest for us at the present time. Coming as we are into close relationships the most authentic information regarding them is eminently desirable

It is a significant indication of the position which Mr Seward holds before the world that even before he starts upon this extended journey the Czar of Russia should have tendered him the palace of the Russian Legation in the Chinese capital for his occupation while there. Our own Government also fitly offers him a national vessel for his entire absence. He thus goes in a semi-official capacity. He will everywhere be received as the representative of the United States. Having been for eight years at the head of our Foreign Department it is peculiarly appropriate that his visit should bear the outward marks of its importance. It was under Mr Seward's administration of Foreign Affairs that Mr Burlingame was sent to China. It was under him that the new policy so advantageous to America was inaugurated, and its beneficent fruits were realized. That his visit will promote this good understanding there can be no doubt and both for himself and his mission there are the best wishes in every American heart

Bismarck's Announcement of the French Declaration of War

The following is the text of the circular addressed by the federal government to its diplomatic agents abroad, announcing that France declared war to Prussia

BERLIN July 19 1870

The imperial government of France has sent to us through its Charge d'Affaires the … document which contains the declaration of war. It is the first official document we have received from the French government relative to the grave affair which has occupied the world for a fortnight. In that document the French government gives the following reasons for the war it makes against us: Firstly the refusal by the King to pledge himself that the advent of a Prussian prince to the throne of Spain should not take place with his consent; secondly the alleged notification to the Cabinets of the refusal by the King to receive the Ambassador of France and to continue negotiations with him. We … answer to those allegations that his Majesty the King having from respect for the independence and the autonomy of the Spanish nation and for the freedom of the resolutions of the princes of the Hohenzollern House never thought of putting Prince Leopold on that throne. The demand to which his Majesty has been subjected to obtain assurances for the future were both unjustifiable and arrogant. To have a suspicion that he entertained an afterthought of an intention hostile to France was but a gratuitous invention. The alleged notifications to the Cabinets never took place, and the King never refused to treat with the French Ambassador. On the contrary, the French representative never expressed the wish to enter into official negotiation with the King's government. It was personally and in private conversation with the King at Ems that he spoke about the questions referred to. At home and abroad the German nation has recognized that the efforts of French government had but one aim: a humiliation which the nation can not … It has recognized that war which Prussia could never have thought of was imposed by France. The whole civilized world will admit that the motives put forward by France do not exist; that they are merely pretexts invented for the occasion. The German Confederation and the allied governments of Southern Germany protest against an aggression which never was called for and they will repulse it with all the means God has given them. You will leave a copy of the present dispatch with the Minister of Foreign Affairs of the government to which you are accredited

BATTLE BETWEEN THE CROW AND SIOUX INDIANS

A letter to the Montana Pick … Post says

CROW AGENCY M T July 29

EDITOR PICK AND PLOW: A runner has just come in from the Crow camp on Clark's Fork and reports as follows: That about the 1st of July between Big Horn and Little Horn the Sioux attacked the Crow camp; the Crows rallied and … off the Sioux, pursuing them as long as their horses could travel … 110 horses and 40 mules. The Crows lost 13 warriors and one woman killed … Sioux … scalps and two women prisoners besides killing some whose bodies were carried off by their friends

Very respectfully
L M CAMP
1st Lieut and Brvt Capt U S A
and Agent Crows

The battle referred to must have taken place in the territory of the Big Horn Expedition … afterwards did pass through in … conjecture we can both find hope of its safety and apprehension of its destruction. The Sioux may have been prevented by the … from attacking the Cheyenne adventurers … may have committed murders along … before being put to flight by the Crows. About the 1st of July the Big Horners were to have been in the vicinity of the Little Horn, but the runner bringing the dispatch says no white men were seen or heard of in the vicinity of the Little …

A daughter of Baron Gerolt the Prussian Minister decorated the altar at St Matthew's Church at the funeral of the late M Prevost-Paradol, French Minister at Washington. When asked if he would attend the funeral the Prussian Minister answered yes and remarked that after death there is no war

France Aroused

[From the New York Tribune August 11th]

A French levy en masse is a terrible and a … thing. Men now from one end of France to the other are rushing together, … arms and leaders chanting the Marseillaise and shouting "A bas la Prusse!" A … enthusiasm for war has seized upon the whole nation. There is no doubt that the Government if it had means of transportation and subsistence might to-day throw upon the Prussian lines almost every Frenchman capable of bearing arms, and these men would fight to the death to drive back the hated invader. But a populace in arms is not an army. A large proportion of the new levies are doubtless men who have served already in the army or the national guard, and could soon be made effective soldiers. We are told also that the French are a people of military tastes which is quite true, yet the average French peasant, before he has been … over by drilling and discipline, is one of the most unmartial creatures in the world. A long stay in camp or barracks is necessary to fit him for the field. So if the full strength of the Empire is now called forth, only a small part of it will be immediately available at the front

Napoleon's inefficiency as a commander, which military men knew well enough before has now been manifested to everybody. If his fortunes should be retrieved by a victory at Metz, the credit will not belong to him and will not be given him. Perhaps in the course of the campaign some great military genius may arise among the French host, as a great military genius arose in the last century among the hosts of revolutionary France, and the people, after marching to victory under him may place him at the head of the nation. But the sick man who lies suffering and beaten at Chalons will never again enkindle their ardor. It is not for him that France has arisen

NAPOLEON AND FRANCE

[From the N. Y Herald, Aug 11.]

He would be a bold man who would say that France might not yet repel the invader. Frenchmen of all ranks and classes may unite for the defense of their own soil. If King William is wise he will take his revenge upon Napoleon by proclaiming to France that he wars not against Frenchmen nor French institutions but against the man who has wantonly disturbed the peace of Europe. If he takes this course he will disarm a million foes. If however he should delay, thus giving Napoleon a chance to abdicate in favor of his son or in favor of a republic, Prussia may find that she is far from home in the enemy's country. Should Napoleon fall there are many in all lands who will be filled with regrets. He has been useful in his day and generation. He has made France respected abroad and prosperous at home. He has powerfully aided the cause of modern progress. The modern question—the nationalities—a question which lies at the root of this war has been very effectively answered by himself. United Italy ought to be grateful to him for united Italy will remain a lasting memorial of his generosity and of his common sense. If this time he has failed he has failed by attempting too much. It is not our opinion that if Napoleon should be driven to the wall all hopes of his dynasty are lost. France was ungrateful to his uncle, but his prosperous reign was not thereby rendered impossible. France may be ungrateful to him, but his son will still have a chance. If the present ruler of France is not equal to the great Cæsar the great Cromwell, the great Napoleon he is nevertheless, a great man and his name will live in history. For the present he seems to have made a mistake and the fates are against him

NEW METHOD OF PROPELLING.—John Giles, of Sydney writes to us requesting us to call the attention of American engineers and steamboat-builders to his invention for propelling steamers by a screw placed in a pipe under the middle of the boat. This pipe is curved and opens into the water, entering in front and being driven out behind by the screw, so it is the current made by the screw, and passing through the pipe that propels the vessel. He says

The chief obstacle to high speed in ocean steam navigation hitherto has been the fact that while it takes a very great propelling force to drive a vessel at high speed, it becomes more and more difficult, as speed is increased to maintain the constancy of that force. For instance, suppose a vessel propelled by any of the methods now in use at a speed of twelve knots an hour, and that for this purpose it is necessary to maintain a constant thrust of two tons upon the vessel, and in order to get this force it is necessary to expend the propelling power at the rate of three knots an hour in still water, it then follows that when the vessel has attained a speed of twelve knots it becomes necessary, in order to maintain the constancy of the pressure, that the power should be expended at the rate of fifteen knots of which only three knots are productive of any practical result, the remaining twelve knots being expended in keeping pace with the vessel's rate of progress. While therefore a thrust force expended at the rate of three miles per hour would maintain the speed of a vessel it is actually necessary by the methods of steam propulsion now in use to expend that force at the rate of fifteen knots per hour to accomplish the same result and this is only because the line of the ship's progress and the line of the expression of propelling power are in the same parallel * *

By this method of steam propulsion high speed ocean traffic even at the rate of fifty miles per hour is made available with the greatest economy and (by setting out certain ocean tracks especially for steam traffic as ocean steam roads) with greater safety and comfort even than upon land

It will be of interest at this time to give attention to the following events with the dates of their occurrence. In 1805 the Russian power received a crushing defeat in the great battle of Austerlitz, in which three Emperors were present viz: The Emperors of France Russia and Austria. The forces of the two latter were united, but four-fifths of those who participated in the struggle at Austerlitz were Russians. A half a century passed away and in 1855 the French and the Russians were contesting for the supremacy at Sebastopol under Emperors of the same names as those who met in 1805. In 1809 the French were at war with the Austrians, and entered Vienna in triumph. In 1859 the same countries were engaged in a deadly contest with even larger numbers in Northern Italy. In 1799 the First Napoleon had seized … First Consul the supreme authority in France. In 1849 fifty years after the Third Napoleon had just been elected President of the same country

PROGRESS ON THE NORTHERN PACIFIC.—The Duluth Minnesotian contains the following:

Orders were received last week at the engineer headquarters five miles out from the junction … not to permit any more sub-contracts until the practical engineering work was further along. The contractors are crowding engineers beyond reasonable expedition. There is no difficulty in obtaining laborers; they are swarming off the Lake Superior & Mississippi Railroad, now pretty nearly completed. The energetic J. C. Logan who has a sub-contract from Jno Ross was in town the past week and purchased four stout two horse teams and wagons for his job on the Northern Pacific. Supplies of various kinds are constantly going up from Duluth

FRIDAY MORNING [illegible] 1870

National Independence

The progress which [illegible] has [illegible] during the [illegible] history and [illegible] industries [illegible] beginning of the present war [illegible] ten years ago the [illegible] would have led to serious [illegible] in the United States and very probably [illegible] disasters. We were then [illegible] to a great extent for [illegible] own manufacturing industries were neglected [illegible] developed and our chief [illegible] the products of foreign industry. Since then manufactures have been largely [illegible] in the United States. Are [illegible] great [illegible] are now produced in our own factories. The products of [illegible] of the most important branches of manufacturing industry have been increased [illegible] fold. The result is that we are now measurably independent of foreign markets. A war that embroils Europe [illegible] prices up on us. Our markets are somewhat affected it is true, but the disturbance is slight. It is nothing like what it would be if our home manufactures had not been so largely increased and multiplied during the last ten years.

This state of things that tells so powerfully in our favor is the direct result of a policy which we were not wise enough to accept till it was forced upon us by the great war of the rebellion. In order to provide a revenue to meet the vast expenses of the Government in the war we were driven to the [illegible] and rejected the principles and practice of free trade and gave the principle of protection its first fair thorough and complete trial. Our industry was adequately protected and then commenced a magical increase of the number of manufacturing establishments and of the products of manufacturing industry. Many predicted disaster to the country as the result of protective rates on all commodities but it resulted otherwise. We had builded better than we knew. In all parts of the country new manufacturing enterprises were started and new machinery set in motion. The consequence is that we now manufacture for ourselves more extensively than at any former period. That this policy has made us independent as a nation, as we never were before, the very slight disturbances in trade resulting from the present mighty contest in Europe will sufficiently prove.

The diversified industries of our country, the product of wise discriminations in favor of domestic manufactures, have carried us over the trying difficulties of the last ten years and kept the country in a state of continually increasing prosperity. No one can doubt that the increasing prosperity of the country, notwithstanding the late war and its results, is a fact. We have more manufacturing establishments, more farms, more buildings, better living and apparel than ever before. This is a fact which no one who has his eyes about him can deny. And now we have reached a point where we are practically independent of foreign industry and are therefore truly independent as a nation. Such a result is a grand vindication of the protective policy which has created and established the vast system of diversified industry that now exists in the United States.

Is the Government to Tax What It Owes?

A Democratic Congressional Convention in an Illinois District demands that Congress shall levy a fair tax on United States bonds, and the nominee of the Convention was pledged to urge and vote for that proposition if elected to Congress.

The Chicago Tribune comments on the proposition in a forcible and incisive manner. If Congress, asks that paper, should levy a tax on United States bonds why should not the Legislatures of the States levy a tax on their respective State debts? If the Federal Government can be in part supported by taxing what it owes, why should not the State, county, city and township governments be supported by the same means? We have heard of men living on the interest of their debts. That is precisely what this Egyptian resolution demands that the Federal Government shall undertake to do. Suppose Congress should tax the national debt two per cent., that would simply be a repudiation of one-third of the interest that was promised to the public creditors. We should like to know why an individual debtor has not just as much right to levy a tax on the note he owes, and deduct it from the interest, as for the Government to do it? A Federal bond is a joint note owed by all the men in the United States to the holder, just as the note of a private corporation or firm is the note of the stockholders or members thereof. If the General Government will set the example of forcibly withholding a portion of the interest it has promised to pay its creditors, it may be followed by all the States, counties, cities, towns, townships, corporations, firms, and debtors in the United States, for, if it is right and proper for the Government to confiscate a portion of the interest it has agreed to pay, it is equally right and proper for all the subordinate political bodies, corporations and individuals in debt to follow so illustrious an example. The precedent of national rascality would be too high and influential to be resisted—at least in all States and communities under Democratic control.

Population of Oregon

Census returns of but a few counties in this State have yet been received. But from the returns furnished for publication some idea may be formed of the whole population of the State. We think the enumeration when completed will not show above 100,000 inhabitants. The population of Multnomah county will not vary much from 11,000. Marion county may probably reach 12,000. Linn is estimated at 10,000. Lane and Douglas at [illegible] each. Clackamas has 6,000. Jackson probably about an equal number. Polk, Benton and Yamhill will show about 5,000 each. Washington county has something over 4,000 and the counties east of the Cascade mountains, taking Umatilla as a guide, have about 13,000. The aggregate for the counties above named is 92,000. There remain the counties of Clatsop, Columbia, Tillamook, Coos, Curry and Josephine which may swell the aggregate up to 100,000. But it may not exceed [illegible] 000. The whole returns will probably be in within a few days.

The Superintendent of the Census has received returns from which he forms an estimate that the whole population of the United States is 40,300,000. In general the large cities fall twenty per cent below the estimates heretofore placed upon their populations. The Superintendent says that the number of unoccupied houses in the large cities is almost fabulous and he thinks this proves that [illegible] going West and South.

[illegible] the Prussians [illegible] of [illegible] are [illegible] the [illegible] Berlin [illegible] reliable [illegible] expected [illegible] great [illegible] New York [illegible]

OREGON

Last year Jackson county realized from the sale of Chinese mining licenses [illegible] and Chinese poll tax [illegible]. This revenue is now entirely cut off.

The Sentinel learns that the [illegible] on Lake Labish is progressing satisfactorily and will probably be [illegible]. Forty Chinamen have been discharged and have gone below. Sixty-five are retained and have been set up the grade six teen miles toward Jefferson. A large force of white men and teams are employed at Herren's camp along Mill Creek about five miles south of town, and Hart & Co., contractors, who have completed three miles of grading south of the last crossing of Mill Creek, are now working down the creek to meet the work from this way. There is not much difficult work left to complete the grade to the Santiam.

The Salem Statesman tells this story of a haunted house: Across the Santiam river, beyond Jefferson, toward Albany on the stage road there stands a haunted house. It stands in full view and of rather good exterior, being two stories high, [illegible] rotting [illegible] decay and unoccupied because the various persons who have tried to live in it have been disturbed by the recurrence of groans and the clanking of chains with disagreeable sounds in general. The family who now own the place live in a very ordinary cabin in sight and whenever the big house has found an occupant the tenant has been thus disturbed. The house was moved to its present location from Santiam city, so called, which is perhaps a city of ghosts, or else it lacks inhabitants. About 15 years ago a man named Hale was killed there. The difficulty had a woman in it, somehow, and was settled by Hale being knocked in the head and killed by the dasher of a churn. At any rate he was murdered in this house and since that time it has had a reputation for being haunted and is rotting away on the strength of its reputation.

A correspondent of the Jacksonville Sentinel at Rock Point writes on the subject of railroads: "If a man, favorable to what is known as the Pengra route, succeeds Williams in the United States Senate, then I think with you that our chances for a railroad are lost for good. Not being a Republican, however, Geo. H. Williams is not my first choice for Senator. The Democrats have the legislature, and the legislators elect from Southern Oregon are Democrats, and hence the propriety of electing a Democratic Senator; but that Senator must be an open and able advocate of the railroad interests of this section, and I for one would rather see Williams returned to his seat than see him succeeded by a Democrat even who will not do his best for the railroad interests of our section of the State. These interests are the highest we now have, and unless we do the right thing now they will be lost forever." The writer of the above should know the Democrat who succeeds Williams will go there too late to do anything even if he had the power to do it. The matter will be decided this winter, and Southern Oregon will not get a railroad.

THE TERRITORIES

A woman recently arrived in the new mining camp on Snake river, and there was a perfect rush to see her.

We are assured by a Montana paper that it is not true that there is a stream of water in that Territory which is as cold as ice where it issues from the summit of a mountain, but which runs down over the smooth rocks so far and fast that it is boiling hot when it reaches the bottom.

A Montana paper says: The development of the Cedar Creek diggings has brought into notice and caused the settlement of the fertile lands which lie around the Cœur d'Alene Lake just over the Cœur d'Alene mountains in Idaho. A large number of families have settled in that section in the last six months.

Below the mouth of the Big Horn to the Powder river the banks of the Yellowstone are said to be low, except where it breaks through the successive ranges of clay hills, and it gradually assumes the characteristics of the Missouri—numerous sand bars, low falling banks, densely timbered islands and sloughs which run from the main stream and do not return except at high water, forming at low water small lakes along the banks.

The Idaho World of late date says: For miles in every direction around Idaho City the timber is on fire and has been burning for the last two weeks. It has extended along the divide between Grimes creek and the Payette and also on the mountains between More and Grimes creek. These volumes of smoke encircle our city and remind one of a burlesque attempt at Indian summer. Ditch owners have been kept on the qui vive watching their flumes, which are in constant danger of the fire.

On an afternoon recently, as we learn from the Olympia Tribune, a party of ladies and gentlemen crossed from Olympia to the western shore of Budd's Inlet in a small boat, and after putting on bathing suits swam back to Olympia, landing on the point just below the Capitol. We do not know the precise distance from shore to shore, but we do know that it is sufficiently great to tax the endurance of many good swimmers. The young ladies, two sisters well known in Olympia, are noted for their feats in water, an element they are extremely fond of.

POLITICAL NOTES

The World denounces the census in New York as fraudulent, a Radical imposition, a Radical job, a Radical cheat, and all because it exposes the Democratic election frauds in that city.

The New York Tribune says: The President and Attorney General are both understood to have expressed in decided terms their disapproval of the course proposed by the Georgia Legislature to avoid an election this fall and prolong their own terms of office. The interpretation of the Reconstruction acts thus sanctioned by the President is so obviously just that the only [illegible] for surprise [illegible] the Georgia [illegible] which [illegible] purpose [illegible] defy [illegible].

The Albany, N. Y. [illegible] says that the Radicals are really ashamed of their great Southern leader Mr. Whittemore. The [illegible] is a fact. They are ashamed of him and mean to prevent his return to Congress [illegible]. But what has the Argus to say of the great Kentucky leader [illegible] who was kicked out of Congress for selling cadetships and who is the Democratic candidate for re-election. Are we to infer from the silence of the Argus upon the subject that the Democratic party are not ashamed of [illegible]?

The Conservatives are vociferous in the Tennessee judicial election. As specimen of the means by which they gained the victory it [illegible] that [illegible] of Memphis all the officers have been arrested for violating the laws [illegible] the amendments of the Constitution [illegible] the United States officials in that State are kept busy taking depositions of colored voters who have been defrauded of their rights or kept from voting by intimidation. A large number of Republican ballots were thrown out after they were cast for trifling reasons so that general dissatisfaction exists at the high handed proceedings of the Ku Klux canvassers.

The establishment of a national gold bank in Boston under the new law, says the New York Herald, is probably the forerunner of a number of others throughout the country. It is encouraging to feel in the establishment of such banks that we have reached something tangible and permanent pointing towards specie payments, something not forced, but springing spontaneously from a fair spirit of competition between the great bank monopolists of the country.

Persons contemplating a trip to Paris must be provided with passports from the United States Government which can be procured on application in person or by letter at the State Department at Washington.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

EASTERN DATES TO AUGUST 25

French Evacuate Chalons

[illegible] August [illegible]. The following official [illegible] We have received a [illegible] dated Paris to [illegible] evening to the effect that Chalons has been evacuated by the French and that a Prussian column is west of Chalons [illegible].

Prussians Advancing

[illegible] August [illegible] I regret [illegible] that the Prussians are at [illegible] to-day. The Prince Royal [illegible] reported at [illegible] [illegible] between [illegible] Metz or [illegible] the army of McMahon [illegible].

Dispatches from London

London, August [illegible].—The entire command of McMahon [illegible] Monday. [illegible] McMahon [illegible] It [illegible] Bazaine has severed [illegible] the main French army at [illegible] completely [illegible] Chalons is abandoned. The forces of the [illegible] to-day in [illegible] as well as Rheims, and [illegible] meeting with [illegible] resistance while Prince Frederick Charles [illegible].

New York, August [illegible] The Herald's dispatch dated London [illegible] says the Bank of England has reduced the rate of discount [illegible] per cent.

It is [illegible] in Steinmetz [illegible] of Metz. There are strong detachments at Metz and [illegible].

The garrison of Toul made a sortie yesterday. Seven hundred Prussians were killed and wounded in the action that followed.

Paris has no News from the War.

London, August [illegible] P. M.—Paris is utterly without [illegible] from the seat of war. But enchantments [illegible] are completed.

It is believed that a deputation of the Corps Legislatif [illegible] to the Emperor to demand his abdication.

[illegible] referring to [illegible] from private sources says [illegible] Paris is all [illegible] tomorrow.

[illegible] reports formally that Prussians were defeated in a battle on Sunday.

Strasbourg was again bombarded without result on the 23d.

London, August 25.—It is believed here that Prussians will not hurry the attack on Paris but will first attend to Bazaine, leaving the Prince to watch McMahon.

Vague Rumors of Another Battle. Victory Claimed for the French

Paris, August 25—Evening.—Figaro this afternoon contains the following: A person who arrived from the vicinity of [illegible] this evening states that he was informed there that the Prussians were defeated to-day between Verdun and Chalons.

Special to the Evening Telegram.

London, August 25.—There is a great deal of excitement this afternoon over a rumor in the Stock Exchange that the Prussians under the Crown Prince have been defeated by the French under McMahon. The rumored repulse of the Prussians, although occasioning the wildest excitement, can be traced to no creditable source.

The French to Attack in the Baltic

New York, Aug. 25.—German banks to-day received telegrams from Hamburg stating that the French fleet was preparing for attack. Stirring news from the North Sea and the Baltic may be received any moment.

UTAH

Grand Military Review—Small Pox

Salt Lake, August 25.—A grand review of the military of the territory is to be held shortly.

A number of cases of small pox are reported in this locality. Citizens are using every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease.

CALIFORNIA

From San Francisco

San Francisco, August 25.—Julia O'Connor to-day recovered judgment for $3,000 against Stephen [illegible] Piper, contractor, for the death of her husband by being crushed by a wall thrown down by defendant's orders.

The English war steamer [illegible] arrived this evening, 9 days from Victoria.

The jury in the Brotherton forgery case were out all night, unable to agree.

Arrival of Mr. Seward

San Francisco, August 25.—Mr. Seward arrived by special train from Sacramento at four o'clock P. M., in advance of the time announced, thus avoiding any demonstration, and went directly to the residence of Judge Hastings, on Taylor and Washington streets.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES

Rich Gold Mines

Grass Valley, Aug. 25.—The gravel in the Hope Company claim is proving very rich. The Superintendent yesterday washed out $75 using only a miner's prospecting pan. The bed of gravel is in new and unwashed ground.

Horse Race

San Diego, August 25.—The race to-day at the Agricultural Park for a purse of $1,000 between Belle Hinton and Rattler was won by the latter. Time 1:20.

Reported Gold Discovery

A gold discovery of exceeding richness is reported in San Rafael Valley. The quartz vein is not over six inches in width, but gold in large quantities and nuggets of pure gold may be picked out of the rock. There is plenty of water within a mile distant, but it is impossible to get the stream into the diggings.

Stockton Dispatch

Stockton, August 25.—The Republican Convention meets here to-morrow evening to nominate a candidate for Supervisor of the First District.

Efforts are being made to secure the location of the Odd Fellows' College and Home at this place. Ninety-five acres of land outside the southern limits of the city, which the owners are willing to donate to the college, and cash donations amounting to $1,000 can be raised.

Marysville Dispatch

Marysville, August 25.—The Republicans of the Third Supervisor District have nominated Henry B. Graves for Supervisor.

The Dexter mine in Brown's Valley struck a rich ledge of rotten quartz, full of free gold.

Railroad Subsidy Election

San Jose, August 25.—Only a small number of votes were cast at the election to-day on the proposed subsidy of $150,000 to the Santa Clara Valley Railroad and Transportation Company, although there was a good deal of wire pulling and local excitement. The vote is very close. The returns are received: San Jose First Precinct, for subsidy [illegible] against [illegible]; Second Precinct, for subsidy [illegible] against 202; Santa Clara, for subsidy 181, against 47; Gilroy, for subsidy [illegible] against [illegible]; Mayfield, for subsidy [illegible] against [illegible]; Berryessa, for subsidy [illegible] against 65; San Ysidro, for subsidy 11, against 39.

Santa Clara, August 25.—The election in this county to-day to grant a subsidy resulted in a majority of [illegible] in favor. The vote was very light, many allowing the election to go by default. Judges and [illegible] of the company greatly influenced the vote. Reports from Gilroy, Mayfield and other [illegible] defeat of the subsidy. Much disappointment is felt at the result.

NEVADA

Austin, August 25.—H. Van Winkle, Prussian Consul at this place, was arrested [illegible] for a cargo of [illegible] Carson. He was admitted to bail [illegible] $1,000 bail.

Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped to-day six bars of the value of $[illegible].

Reno, August 25.—Wells, Fargo & Co. shipped to-night from the English mill [illegible] bars valued at $[illegible].

Opening of the Political Campaign

[illegible] August [illegible]. The political campaign in this county has fairly opened, with a promise of being very lively. Republican Clubs have already been organized and the Democrats are taking steps in the same direction.

Man Missing

[illegible] August [illegible]. Fred Schwarm, a saloon keeper, left here about the 9th of July with a large amount of money on his person and has since been unheard of. Fears are entertained of foul play.

Mining News

Reports from the Ellsworth mines confirm the richness of the district. A new quartz mill will soon commence operations.

Heavy Blast of Powder

Sucker Flat, Aug. 25.—A blast of 1,[illegible]0 kegs of powder exploded to-day. It was not a very particular success.

The great railroad era has dawned upon this State. [illegible] already heard in our midst. The North Pacific railroad have a regiment of engineers [illegible] and will soon have thousands of men constructing the road. Hundreds of new settlers are arriving every month to fill up our State and develop her resources. But it matters not how many [illegible] the Klein & Pfenner will be ready for them with all kinds of clothing and Staple goods. They are constantly [illegible] by every steamer so that [illegible] Call at [illegible] the old stand on Front street.

NOTES ON THE WAR

The recent German victories have created an [illegible] and enthusiasm among the German throughout the country almost unparalleled. Reports of meetings at which processions, flags and speeches are the main features reach us from all quarters.

The New York Herald perpetrates this poor pun: The sacrifice of human life among the Prussians in the late battles can hardly be compared with the frightful German mortality in this [illegible] for which [illegible] probably not one [illegible] bushel [illegible] dust where every [illegible] German [illegible].

The Empress [illegible] has again [illegible] of the [illegible] Minister [illegible] her just before the departure of [illegible] way. I am [illegible] what [illegible] was it to be expected [illegible] man as this should have the [illegible] and good sense to keep from the public the [illegible] of the [illegible] Empress.

Neither the French nor the North German [illegible] at Washington is in the regular receipt of telegrams relative to the war. They depend for the press dispatches which are eagerly sought at both legations. They receive from time to time however, telegrams from their respective governments referring to their relations with our government, which are of such a character as to confine their contents to the parties immediately concerned.

A Paris paper publishes the following little speech of Marshal [illegible] to sixty young men of the Garde Mobile who are to serve as his secretaries: Gentlemen, We are commencing the campaign. We shall make good cheer when we have a chance and when there is not [illegible] which may happen any day, we must buckle our belts tighter. You will have hard work [illegible] rest my esteem, the knowledge that you are being useful to your country and to [illegible]. [illegible] And now gentlemen, off with you.

Chalons, where the Emperor now has his head quarters, is about 90 miles in the rear of the Moselle and 100 miles in a straight line from Paris. Metz and Nancy are 30 miles apart and each 170 miles in a straight line from Paris. By railroad however the distance from the capital is much greater. The Strasbourg trunk line ([illegible] de l'Est) passes through Nancy and Chalons, the distance of the former place from Paris being by rail about 220 miles. Metz is situated on a branch of the same road which forks a few miles north west of Nancy, and its distance from the capital by rail is about 210 miles.

A correspondent in Germany writes: What impresses me most agreeably is that I hear nowhere bragging or abusing of the French. For in fact the Germans do not hate the French. They only love their liberty and independence, and make war against Louis Napoleon. The enthusiasm has even caught the boys, as in the time of the crusades; and recently twenty two boys had concealed themselves under the seats of the railway carriages of a train going from Berlin toward the Rhine. The boys—from 10 to 14 years old—wanted to enlist. They cried with vexation when they were discovered and pulled out from their hiding place.

It is a new story that when John Randolph was dying he did not write remorse upon a card but wrote R. Morse, that being the name of the physician who attended him during his sickness.

PAINFUL REFLECTION.

The Philanthropist's heart is painfully grieved [illegible] part of those whose condition [illegible] can relieve the [illegible] subject to be benefitted from the chains [illegible] gratitude. How then can those hope to escape this imputation that fail to acknowledge the superior merits of NEWELL'S PULMONARY SYRUP as the most effective remedy ever offered to an appreciative public for the certain and speedy cure of all affections of the lungs, of whatever nature.

[illegible] We have [illegible] the [illegible] be [illegible] The [illegible] upon a systematic [illegible] for the business of [illegible] but also to [illegible] manhood. To secure [illegible] has been carefully [illegible] grade. It is desired [illegible] will be spared to secure the course and [illegible] study the following [illegible] same family. The boarding [illegible] will be with the [illegible] and exercise the [illegible] regulated [illegible] family. The school [illegible] high ground overlooking the city of Portland and [illegible] an extensive view of [illegible] the Willamette and of the Cascade mountains. There is ample ground for exercise and a covered gymnasium will be provided for use in wet weather. The tuition varies [illegible] to $30 according to [illegible] per term of [illegible] weeks, [illegible] term of twenty weeks [illegible].

Passengers for San Francisco.—The steamship [illegible], Commander, sailed at [illegible] P. M. yesterday for San Francisco [illegible] following named passengers: [illegible] Mrs J W Sut[illegible] and wife [illegible] W T Armstrong [illegible] Rev D [illegible] Carr and wife [illegible] Lindenbaum [illegible] J H Hone [illegible] C H Larrabee, J W Troup, W H Brown [illegible] Baldach [illegible] Bailey W [illegible] Mrs Nash, Miss Kath, Walter Moffett, C M Bennett, D P Terril, J B Kast, G B Hodges, F A Hawley, W H Harris, Leopold Hirsch, three daughters and servant, T Foulke, W S Faulk, M F Reeves and son, Mrs M E Reeves and daughter, Gov Geo L Woods, H E Wald [illegible] A Beck, A Nathan, [illegible] Field, wife and son, F S Osthem, wife and child, Mrs M A Williams, Mrs Mary A Sheldon, [illegible] Goodlach, J D S [illegible], J M Barber, [illegible] Ben Blumauer, Lewis Blumauer, A Field, [illegible] E Dorer, Mrs L Anderson and 4 children, Miss Alice Bem [illegible] W F & Co's messenger and [illegible] in the steerage.

The Great Overland Circus.—Castello's Great Overland Circus and Menagerie will arrive [illegible] day and open this evening at the corner of [illegible] and F[illegible] streets. We find the following [illegible] made of the show in the Salem Statesman: The [illegible] and Circus made its promised grand entrance yesterday afternoon attracting quite a crowd. Besides the usual show and trappings [illegible] the startling sight of a huge lion [illegible] beside his keeper on top of the [illegible]. Really this sight was a noticeable [illegible] and if it was not dangerous it was at least [illegible] enough to please the most craving. There was a good house in attendance last evening, and the performance elicited great satisfaction. It was a good deal of a show and as the [illegible] people to be in attendance at the State [illegible], we predict that they will reap a harvest at that time as well as do a good business all the [illegible]. Look out for the lion [illegible].

A New Fire Nozzle.—Protection Co. No. 4 [illegible] their steam engine out last evening making [illegible] of a new style of nozzle—Fred K. Miller's ([illegible]) patent. The peculiarity of the nozzle is [illegible] throws a flat stream not unlike the blaze [illegible] an ordinary gas burner. The stream of [illegible] spread [illegible] falls in spray. It is claimed that [illegible] ordinary fires it is superior in efficiency to the round nozzle inasmuch as it throws water upon a greater surface. It is evident, though, that its advantages must depend upon circumstances. There might be cases of fire where it would be just the thing, but if it were desired to concentrate the flood upon a particular point, as in playing through a high or distant window, it would not do at all. The stream thrown last evening with the usual head of steam was about a hundred feet, but it covered at that distance the entire breadth of the street.

Passengers for Portland.—The N. P. T. Co.'s steamship [illegible] sailed yesterday from San Francisco for this port. The following is her list of passengers: J T Palmer and wife, L T Pal[illegible], J Beraner, wife and daughter, T T Byrne, [illegible] Starr, J Harris, M Hutchinson, A S Pease, H [illegible] B Jackson, C H Meussdorffer, F Gunnis, C P Shuflet, Wm J Holman, P Beltman, [illegible] Black and wife, J Duncan, Thos Stockdale, J S Miller and family, Maj G O Hunt and wife, Capt A H N[illegible] and wife, L H Wakefield, J [illegible] Laird, A B Reed, J H Howe, J Ralston, wife and son, Mrs L F Grover, child and servant, H [illegible] Hutchinson and wife, J H Smith, wife and 2 children, Miss V Stevens, J Demorest, Frank [illegible], [illegible] Wightman, Miss Kate Green, Miss Flora Myers, Miss S J Smith, L Hewett and [illegible] others.

Fossil Discovery.—A fragment of fossil has been sent us by Mr Johnson, who found it near Sandy, Clackamas county, at the depth of six feet under ground. In a note accompanying he says it was about six feet long, twenty two inches in circumference and lay in an exact semi-circle. The finder and a number of others were certain that it was the tusk of an elephant. Upon getting the fragment on Wednesday, we submitted it to Mr Hague, U. S. Geologist now in this city, who without hesitation pronounced it not an elephant's tusk, though he would not undertake to say what it did belong to without further investigation. [illegible] seems probable that nobody has lost an elephant in that Sandy neighborhood.

Trainor Captured.—A few days since Sheriff Bills got information that Trainor, who broke jail here about two months since, was at Cathlamet, Washington Territory. Yesterday morning he and deputy sheriff Durham took the steamer for Astoria, arriving about dark. Mr. Bills at once chartered the Fannie McNear, which was lying at the wharf unloading a cargo of lumber, and proceeded to Cathlamet. He found and captured the man and returned to Astoria. [illegible] yesterday he brought his prisoner up and last evening returned him to his old quarters in the county jail. Trainor will be remembered was in jail awaiting trial upon a charge of grand larceny.

Cider.—A good many people think good cider can be made [illegible] but they are much mistaken. We [illegible] yesterday at Martin & Co.'s manufactory [illegible] Mr Jackson of French Prairie [illegible] and that peculiar sparkle [illegible] could not be beat anywhere [illegible] perfectly clear [illegible] all made [illegible] Jackson's cider [illegible] any cider [illegible] market [illegible].

War at the [illegible].—The war has been carried into Oregon City. We hear of several fights have occurred there during the week between champions of the belligerents [illegible]

[illegible] The improvements made to the [illegible] Willamette by the P. T. Co. [illegible] the boats make their [illegible] will probably [illegible] Hereafter there [illegible] about running [illegible] the entire dry season.

[illegible] has received [illegible] of the [illegible] from New [illegible] expected that [illegible]

[illegible] were [illegible] the streets in the early part of the city during the early hours [illegible] The parties perpetrating [illegible] were not discovered.

No Parade.—The parade of the Washington Guard [illegible] anniversary day yesterday did not take place, the order having been countermanded.

Discharging Cargo.—The bark Whistler was hauled over yesterday morning to the steamship dock where she is now discharging cargo.

DAY MORNING, AUGUST 26, 1870.

BISHOP SCOTT GRAMMAR SCHOOL.—We have received a circular setting forth, particularly, some of the advantages of this school, which is to be opened Tuesday, September 6th, proximo. The circular says: "This school is opened in Portland to furnish to the citizens of Oregon a thorough gymnastic, Christian education for their sons. The pupils will be classified according to their attainments and ability, and they will at once begin a systematic course of training, designed not only to fit them for the business of life, but also to develop an enlightened, Christian manhood. To secure this end, a course of instruction has been carefully arranged, embracing the studies usually taught in schools of the highest grade. It is desirable that every pupil enter upon his studies, and no pains will be spared to secure thorough training and discipline from each study. The boarding pupils will be in the same family with the Head Master, and every effort will be made to afford the privileges and exercise the influence of a well regulated Christian family. The building stands on high ground, overlooking the city of Portland, and commands an extensive view of the valley of the Wallamet and of the Cascade mountains. There is ample ground for recreation, and a covered gymnasium will be provided for use in wet weather. The tuition varies, according to branches pursued, from $15 to $30 per term of twenty weeks. Board and tuition, including fuel and lights, per term of twenty weeks, $125. Extras, extra.

PASSENGERS FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—The steamship Oriflamme, Metzger, Commander, sailed at o'clock, P. M., yesterday for San Francisco, with the following named passengers: E Brey and wife, Mrs Annie Gerry, Mrs J W Sutton and wife, Mrs D H Carroll and wife, W T Armstrong, P Callahan, D Landenbaum, H Bartell, C H Larrabee, J W Troup, W H ... GONE FOR MORE GOODS.—Mr. J. D. Shoeff, of the firm of John O'Neill & Co., dealers in Gents' Furnishing Goods, First street, left last evening on the Oriflamme, to replenish their stock from the latest Fall and Winter Styles in San Francisco, and in two weeks their customers and everybody will find them ready with the latest assortment in their line.

"There was a frog who lived in a spring,
He caught such a cold that he could not sing."

Poor, unfortunate, Batrachian! In what a sad plight he must have been. And yet his misfortune was one that often befalls singers. Many a once tuneful voice among those who belong to the "genus homo" is utterly spoiled by "cold in the head," or on the lungs, or both combined. For the above mentioned "croaker" we are not aware that any remedy was ever devised; but we rejoice to know that all human singers may keep their heads clear and their throats in tune by a timely use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, both of which are sold by druggists.

JAMES CASTELL, the present champion of the city of Portland, in Jig Dancing, will dance with any person in this city, white or colored, upon a wager of $50 to $100.

SPIRITUAL GROVE MEETING.—At Butteville, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9th, 10th and 11th. Good speakers have been secured for the occasion. The P. T. boats will carry passengers to and fro for half price. They will also dispatch an extra boat on Sunday for the benefit of those wishing to go on that day.

Be on Your Guard.

The unexampled success which for twenty years has accompanied the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters provokes the envy of ignorant nostrum mongers in all parts of the country, and the counterfeiting business having been measurably played out in consequence of the numerous suits instituted against offenders, a new system of tactics has been adopted. In the South and West especially a legion of "Bitters," prepared from worthless materials and bearing a variety of names, have been got up by irresponsible adventurers with the hope of substituting them to some extent for the Standard Tonic of the Age. In some cases country druggists are the concoctors and proprietors of these unscientific and trashy compounds, which are warmly recommended by the venders, who endeavor to palm them off in lieu of the great specific which has never yet had a successful competitor either among the proprietary preparations or the medicines prescribed in private practice. This notice is intended to put the public on their guard against persuasions of parties engaged in the attempt to substitute mere rubbish for the most efficient stomachic and alterative at present known. At this season of the year it is of the greatest consequence that no tricks should be played with depressed and enfeebled systems. Ask, therefore, for Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great vegetable invigorant and alterative, and reject, with deserved contempt, the worse than useless medleys offered in its place. It is as important to the public as to the proprietors of the famous restorative that this advice should be heeded.

SECURE A HOME!!

HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION!
OF
EAST PORTLAND, OREGON,

IS NOW PREPARED TO RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS to their Stock.

Applications for ONE HUNDRED SHARES was made before the books were opened, and a large number of shares have been taken.

The following extracts from the Oregonian and Bulletin will convey a good idea of the plan and workings of the Association, the location of the land, etc., etc.

RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

This association of whose organization we gave an account a few days since, is now ready to dispose of shares. As it is with one exception, (the Portland Homestead Association,) the pioneer organization of that kind in this city, it may be well enough to state what are its purposes, and the manner in which it is proposed to conduct its operations. The purposes of these Homestead Associations are not at all speculative in the ordinary sense of the word. They are dependent for the profits of their investment upon the natural advance in the value of their lands, consequent upon the co-operation of many individuals—shareholders—and the advance on values of all surrounding lands by reason of the expansion of population and demand for room outside of, but still near, the city. The Riverside Homestead Association has a fraction over one hundred and twenty acres of land situated just south of Brooklyn on the east side of the river, the nearest boundary line being about one mile from the ferry landing at East Portland. The tract lies in one strip along the Wallamet river, half a mile in length, and another strip along the Oregon and California railroad, half a mile in length, the two strips being connected near the middle by two rows of blocks (with a street between them,) the whole forming a figure not unlike the letter H. It is divided into 74 blocks, 200 feet square (with streets running at right angles) and 80 fractional lots, along the river front. The shares number 600, worth $60 per share. It will be seen that a share thus represents nearly a lot with an undivided interest in the 80 fractional lots. The 80 fractional shares are to be sold off at the proper time for the benefit of the Association, shareholders coming in for the proceeds in proportion to the number of shares held. When all shares are taken and the Association shall determine to do it, the choice of lots and blocks will be put up at auction to the highest bidder, the proceeds of such sales, after deducting the original price of shares or lots, to be divided equally among the whole number of shares. Thus, if a person wants a particular lot or block, and is willing to pay $100 or $500 premium (more or less as the case may be) he pays it and takes the lot or block as his individual property, the premium being divided among the whole number of shareholders. It will be seen, therefore, that everything is co-operative, and all interests mutual. No man can make a dollar out of it without also making a dollar for every other equal shareholder. There is no chance for loss, unless the property, by some chance, should depreciate far below the first actual cost. Whether this is liable to happen in the case of this particular tract of land must be judged by each for himself; but considering the steady and unprecedented advance on real estate in this city and neighborhood, and at East Portland and vicinity, for the last year or two, it seems hardly possible for values to go back.

In the Riverside Association all proper precautions seem to have been taken to guard against monopolies of shares. No person is allowed to buy more than the number of shares representing three blocks, or twenty-four lots, and votes determining the operations of the Association are restricted in the same manner. The buyers of shares may pay down $60 per share, which will exempt them from all assessments, or they may pay $15 quarterly with an assessment of $4 per share, payable with the first installment, being liable in this latter case to another (and only one there) assessment of $4 per share. Upon the payment of the shares in full, with the assessments as above, the holder is entitled to his certificate and his proportion of all the profits accrued from all sources. No officer of the Association receives any pay for services except the Secretary, who gets $25 per month, so it will be seen that the expenses must be light.

That part of the tract lying along the river is a high plateau, nearly level, about 60 to 90 feet above the water. There is no part of the front row of blocks but commands a splendid view of Portland and the river for miles up and down stream. That part of the tract lying along the railroad is, every foot of it, of the richest loam soil and adapted to gardening purposes. A beautiful little stream of pure water runs through almost the entire length of this wing of the tract, affording the means of irrigation, and power sufficient to supply pure water to every part of the whole tract. There is not a waste lot or fractional lot in the entire tract. Under all these advantages, it would seem impossible that there should be any chance of loss to shareholders. Within a year each shareholder, if he choose, may get a perfect title to as many lots as his shares may represent, or he may continue his interest, undivided, with the Association while the organization may exist.—Oregonian.

THE RIVERSIDE HOMESTEAD ASSOCIATION.

We have been led to make these remarks from the fact that the subject of making homesteads on the outskirts of this city and East Portland, is being thoroughly discussed here among all classes, and one homestead—the "Riverside," just south of East Portland—has already been established. The site selected is a tract of land lying a little over a mile south of the ferry landing. It is shaped like the letter H, one side of which, a half mile in length, borders on the river.

From this portion of the homestead, which is elevated but a little above the other prong of the H, but is still forty or fifty feet above the river, can be had an extensive view of Portland, East Portland, the shipping, and the Willamette river for several miles. The land is very fertile, and is partly covered with light timber. A tract of land just wide enough for two rows of blocks, with an avenue between them, connects the west prong of the H (which has already been described), with that on the east. This last tract of land is in a beautiful little valley, which is now under a high state of cultivation. Through its whole length runs a trout brook, the water of which is as clear as crystal. With a hydraulic ram the Association propose to have water conveyed through pipes to every portion of the homestead.—Daily Bulletin.

DR. PIERCE'S
OR
DISCOVERY

This is the most thorough blood purifier yet discovered, and Cures all Humors from the worst Scrofula to a common Eruption. Pimples and Blotches on the face, and scaly or rough skin, which are such annoying blemishes to many young persons, yield to the use of a few bottles of this wonderful medicine. From one to eight bottles cure Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Ring Worms, Boils, Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, Scrofula Sores, Ulcers and "Canker" in the Mouth and Stomach. It is a pure medicinal extract of native roots and plants, combining in harmony Nature's most sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick. It is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are languid, sleepless, have nervous apprehensions or fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of weakness, will find convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated and despondent, have frequent Headaches, mouth tastes badly in the morning, irregular appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only a part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. For the cure of Habitual Constipation of the Bowels it is a never failing remedy, and those who have used it for this purpose are loud in its praise. In Bronchial, Throat and Lung Diseases, it has produced many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed. Sold by druggists at $1 00 per bottle. Prepared at the Chemical Laboratory of R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.

DESCRIPTION OF THE FRENCH SOLDIERY.

Strasburg Correspondence, July 26, N. Y. Herald.

In the French army the reins of discipline have evidently been tightened during the last few days. There was for some time a small amount of drunkenness among the men, although excuses may easily be made for an immense army drawn together at a given spot like Strasburg, and a vast number of the men being in the town merely for a night or two, en route to rejoin their own regiments, more or less distant. The troops, whose officers were with them, and who were therefore under more command, were seldom seen the worse for drink. But the Zouaves and other corps that had arrived from Algeria, as well as all the men belonging to the province of Alsace, in which Strasbourg is situated, went in for liquor to the very utmost limits of their means.

THE ZOUAVES.

In giving an account of the various corps which compose the French army, it is only natural to take first up an arm of the service of which a similar type is not found in any other service, I mean the Zouaves. It is true that the name of these extraordinary soldiers has been borrowed by other countries, but the copy is nowhere, nor can it ever be, like unto the original, save only in dress. The French Zouaves consist of three regiments of four battalions each, three battalions of each corps always taking the field in war time, and one remaining at the depot. These corps are enlisted for the special condition of serving in Algeria only, excepting a fourth regiment, called the Zouaves of the Guard, which is, of course, always in Paris. The three regiments are now all in Marshal McMahon's corps d' armee, and are each two thousand strong, or six thousand altogether. The men, their discipline and their behavior are as different from the rest of the French army as is their dress. They are invariably recruited from among the greatest daredevils of other regiments. In the field their post is invariably where there is most danger, and they expect to do the hardest work in the way of fighting, just as the artilleryman expects to work his guns, or the cavalry soldier to feed his horse. Their officers hardly look after them at all when off duty, and they are left very much to do as they like. In the field they really do not seem to know what the word danger means, or to imagine that they ought by any chance to ever fear death. They do everything for themselves, and tacitly are admitted by other regiments of the French army to be superior to them. If wine is in their way they will get drunk, but they would scorn to touch the value of a shilling confided to their care. A man of their corps who would steal could not remain a week with them; for the honor of their corps they would bully him out of it. But they are one and all pilferers of what they come across. You might entrust the poorest—and none of them ever have a shilling—among them with thousands in untold gold, and you would never lose the value of a penny; but if these same men came near your kitchen garden or your orchard or your fowl house, they would strip it of every vegetable or apple or chicken and would not deem themselves to be robbers.

For the past few days that the Zouaves were here in Strasburg I am quite sure that a thousand men a day must have been drunk about the streets. Many of them had not been out of Algeria for six or eight years, and of course had to celebrate their return with gallons of wine or beer. Their camp is, or rather was, for the first days after their arrival the most wonderful thing to see. They have, like the rest of the French troops, small, gypsy-like tents, each of which hold three men, and each man carries, packed upon the top of his knapsack, one-third of one of these tents. The Zouaves always seem more kept together by a kind of voluntary association among themselves than by anything in the shape of military discipline. Their officers never go near them except on parade, and the men would resent to the utmost any interference with their own private arrangements. If a Zouave is on duty, or is clean and sober, he is one of the most "workmanlike" soldiers you can see anywhere. Of him it has been proved over and over again in Algiers that, as the Duke of Wellington said of his army in the Peninsula, "he can go anywhere and do anything." In Europe he would, unless in time of war, be utterly useless, for his social ruffianism would make his corps collectively a nuisance that no town would put up with. But in war, and particularly in a campaign—I speak advisedly for I have seen him fight in Italy and Algeria—he is simply invaluable.

There is no such soldier to be found in the army. Where other men starve the Zouave is well fed and in good health. Where others would fear to go, he would take as a matter of course, having to fight. I don't say that he is, take him as a whole, a respectable citizen, very far from it, and if France had no Algeria in which to keep these six or seven thousand incarnate devils during peace time she would be obliged to disband them. But as they now are, and according to the way in which France rules them, they are in times of war like the present beyond all price. When to this I add that weighted as they are with knapsacks, cooking pots, tents, ammunition, blanket and greatcoat they can march four and a half English miles an hour for six days, and can hit the bull's eye with their Chassepots seven times out of ten, taking one man with another at 1,000 yards, you may imagine that 8,000 of such men are invaluable in a corps d'armee.

THE TURCOS.

Next to the Zouaves come the Tirailleur Indigenes or African riflemen, or Turcos, as they are most commonly called. These men have much in common with the Zouaves, but two-thirds of them are composed of native Algerians and one-third of Frenchmen. They also form three regiments of 3,000 men each, and these three regiments are all with McMahon's army corps. Many of them are gigantic negroes, and when in action they rush at the foe in a way that strikes the latter with terror. In the Italian campaign of 1860 the Austrians had such a horror of the Turcos that they called them butchers, and declared that such blood-thirsty creatures ought not to be employed by any civilized nation in the world. They are very difficult, indeed, to manage, and even during the time they have been in Strasbourg had to be moved away from the town. Their officers are Frenchmen picked for the purpose, but up to the rank of lieutenant the native Turcos can get promotion. Like the Zouaves they are excellent marksmen and indefatigable marchers; but they are disliked as a body very much, and would not be retained in Europe in times of peace a single year. There is, it is true, a regiment of Turcos of the Guard in Paris, or rather a single battalion of them, and most visitors must have noticed their black faces and light blue jackets when they were on duty at the Tuileries. But those are all picked men, for even among Algerian Arabs I suppose there are to be found some sheep not quite so black as others. However, even these give a vast deal of trouble, and there have been serious thoughts of disbanding them more than once. But that both these Turcos and the Zouaves will play a very important part in the war about to commence there can hardly be a doubt; and, as I have said in my former letters, the very fact of 6,000 Zouaves and 6,000 Turcos being under McMahon's orders shows that this corps d'armee is destined to be in the front whenever hard knocking is to be done.

THE FRENCH INFANTRY OF THE LINE.

This arm of the service has always been celebrated for its powers of endurance and for its dash and daring in battle; but I confess that, as a body on which to rely on all occasions, I look upon it as inferior to the Prussian. The latter are as orderly and regular in a retreat as in an advance, and can always be kept well in hand. Not so the former. They cannot be kept back, and I can see that their own officers fear greatly that they will not be kept in hand, but will be making rushes on the Prussians, which will prove their destruction, armed as the latter are with a weapon which can destroy at such long distances. It is true that the French Chassepot is a superior firearm to the needle gun; but the French officers seem to think that it will be difficult, if not impossible, to prevent their men firing away all their ammunition at once and then leaving themselves open to be decimated by the enemy. The French officer is an educated, sensible man. He does not undervalue the men he has to fight against. But the army in general despise the Prussians far too much, and they will, I fear, find out their mistake. If the first great battle is not won by the Zouaves and Turcos I fear that the reckless bearing of the French infantry will not improve the state of affairs. In an advance, it is true, they are all that can be wished. They are easily fed, too, in a campaign, and require very little looking after. Where an English soldier would starve they find the means of living well. They are alert, too, obedient and fearless. But once a reverse takes place a retreat with them becomes a rout. Moreover, they have never before met an enemy that was armed as well as the Prussians are now. Moreover, the equipment of the French soldier is overweighted. He has to carry, in addition to what every other soldier is burdened with, such as knapsack, blanket, greatcoat and the like, one-third of a small tent, with stakes, &c., and his share of the cooking pots of his company. If the campaign in Germany fails any time, and there is much hard marching in very hot weather, at least one-third of the infantry of the line must break down under it.

I saw last week five or six regiments arrive here by march route, and not by rail. In every single instance the number of stragglers was something tremendous, many of them only reaching the ground eight and ten hours after their headquarters. The fact is, as it seems to me, the authorities do not make enough of the French soldier. He is a very fine fellow, indeed, but he is, like in many armies, too much of a mere machine.

The Lost Cause.

A CARD FROM EDWARD A. POLLARD—WHO KILLED THE SOUTHERN CONFEDERACY.

Mr. Edward A. Pollard publishes a card in the Baltimore American, which, he says, is his "farewell" shot at the ex-Confederate Chief. He says that it had been hoped that Jefferson Davis would rest quietly in the grave dug by his own hands, but his undying vanity has compelled him to come before the public again. He speaks of Mr. Davis as the "assassin of a country" and "the greatest murderer of his times," also an "unclean ghost," an "evil and damned spirit," &c., &c. Mr. Pollard writes especially to make a personal explanation in regard to the accusation in Southern papers that he has "vilified" Jeff. Davis as an historian. He admits that he despises Mr. Davis, but "not in a personal sense." He has turned an unrelenting pen upon him, he says, as the real assassin of the Confederate cause; "literally, practically more hateful than the Yankee enemy, inasmuch as he, and not the arms of the North, was our real destroyer."

Mr. Pollard adds that when he undertook to write a history of the late war one thing was certain, that the exposure of Jefferson Davis was the one only explanation to save the future sentence of history which impended over the people of the South, of disgrace for the loss of a cause which the best intelligence of the world had decided they were bound to win. He had chosen to vindicate the people of the South, though at the expense of the head of their Government. He yet adheres to such choice, and takes all the reproach that may attach to it, rather than be numbered among the blind and excessive fools who, in adoring Mr. Davis, are consigning their whole country and people to the inevitable and endless reproaches of history. Let it be remembered, despite excuses now made by Southern men as to the numerical and material superiority of the North, that these very same men were those who professed to have considered the inequality of the contest at its beginning, the very same men who then declared that the South had advantages on her side that would completely and certainly outweigh the superiority referred to. The intelligence of the world made the same estimate. The South had advantages which were then calculated to make her success a foregone conclusion.

Those who profess such tenderness, he says, in guarding from the least reproach the sensibilities of Mr. Davis, forget how shameless is the attitude of this man to-day, what defiance his self-conceit and self-assertion have constantly offered to public opinion; and what invitations his own habit of accusing his cotemporaries offers to criticism upon himself. If Mr. Davis had ever at any time confessed that he was wrong, if he had ever taken the least blame upon himself instead of so industriously casting it upon his associates, if he had ever breathed the least word of regret, of compunction, or even shown a decent melancholy at any time in surveying the ruins of the war, even so slight a concession might have touched us in his behalf.

It is seldom, too, that men who have lost great causes in history have been satisfied to live in the scenes of their former greatness, and amid the ruins they have precipitated upon their country. The dignity of exile generally remained for those who have wrecked the hopes of their country, and even where the law has suffered them to live on the theater of their former career, the instincts of decency have led them to withdraw to foreign lands, rather than to remain in brazen insensibility to public indignation, or in conceited blindness to the littleness into which they have fallen. Jefferson Davis, once President of the Southern Confederacy, the autocrat of 8,000,000 of people, is satisfied to exhibit himself in these latter days as a manager of a Life Insurance Company in Memphis, Tennessee. Public opinion in the South is no longer sentimental, and it appreciates Jefferson Davis' true character, and the part he took in the destruction of the Southern Confederacy.

Going too Fast.

[From the S. F. Bulletin.]

In pouring a million of men into France, on an apparent notice of only two weeks, Prussia may easily have awakened the apprehensions of every Government in Europe, including Russia and England. If the war really took Prussia by surprise, then Russia can see that she has no defence against so formidable a military power. But the suspicion is already awakened that there was no surprise; that, on the contrary, the Prussian forces, the Landwehr included, were mobilized before war was declared. The announcements then made by the London Times, of Prussia's intention to absorb Alsace and Lorraine, have received confirmation, and even England begins to show anxiety; since, in view of the developments of the secret treaty, it is apparent that Prussian conquest may, at no distant day, extend to Holland, and even Belgium. Great Britain is therefore ardently mediating for a peace on the basis of the status quo.

But Bismarck, it is said, repulses all such propositions. He is in haste to crush the French armies while he has an immense superiority of force, so as make peace on his own terms, which, it is hinted, will be the annexation of Alsace and Lorraine or an equivalent in money. He will prefer the territory if it does not cause a war with other powers. He may well make haste in such a project, for it is not improbable that Austria, Italy and even Russia may yet rouse from inaction and come to the aid of France, under a sense of common danger. In invading with so large a force, King William has stripped his own 700 miles of territory of defence. Every day in France costs him thousands of soldiers, and the French people, rushing en masse towards Paris, may confront him with a million or even two million defenders of that city, and render its capture impossible, while failure to take it will be ruin to him, either with or without foreign intervention.

It would appear, therefore, that a rejection of offers of peace by Prussia, in a war professedly defensive, will argue ill for her final success. It will only consolidate France in resistance, preserve Napoleon his throne and promote intervention or attack from other powers.

The town of Duluth, at the head of Lake Superior, which a little more than one year ago had not many more than a thousand inhabitants, has an Episcopal church costing $9,500, and a Presbyterian church costing $17,500, and a Methodist church costing $6,500 are in course of erection. It has several public and private schools; an elevator with a capacity of 350,000 bushels, costing $150,000; two large hotels, costing respectively $45,000 and $18,000, without lots or furniture, and several smaller ones; a public library and reading room; gas company; lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows, Good Templars; 300 buildings in all, and 100 under contract; and two good newspapers, the Minnesotian and Tribune.

HOAGLAND'S

NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!

W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,

Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. E. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore easily and speedily adjusted. It is also entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new form ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

Ordinance No. 836.

AN ORDINANCE TO PROVIDE FOR THE TIME and manner of improving Harrison street from Fifth to Eighth street.

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

Section 1. The proposed improvement of that part of Harrison street lying between the west line of Fifth street and the west line of Eighth street shall be completed in the manner hereinafter provided, on or before the thirtieth day of October, 1870.

Section 2. The surface of the street shall be cleared of all plank, timbers or other obstacles or perishable materials (sidewalks, cross walks and plank roadways of the proper width and grade excepted.) If the obstructions are not removed by the owners of the adjacent lots within three days from the service of notice by the Street Commissioner they shall be removed by and become the property of the contractor.

Section 3. The improvement shall consist of grading, laying sidewalks, and crosswalks, together with plank gutters wherever the Committee on Streets and Public Property and the City Surveyor may direct.

Section 4. The work to be done and materials furnished shall correspond with the provisions of and under the restrictions contained in Sections 6, 7, 8, 9, 11 and 12 of Ordinance No. 703, entitled "an Ordinance in relation to the improvement of streets."

Section 5. The contractor shall take entire charge of the work during its progress and shall be responsible for any loss or sacrifice occasioned by carelessness or neglect.

Section 6. The Committee on Streets and Public Property are hereby authorized to advertise for proposals, receive bids and enter into contract with the lowest responsible bidder or bidders for the improvement provided for in this ordinance.

Section 7. The improvement shall be completed to the satisfaction of the Committee on Streets and Public Property and the Street Commissioner.

Passed the Common Council Aug. 10, 1870.

W. S. CALDWELL,
Auditor and Clerk.

Approved Aug. 11, 1870.
